Son of Beatles' Producer Dives Into The 'White Album'

Hardcore fans of the Beatles like to pore over every detail of the band and endlessly dissect their songs. Then there's Giles Martin, who manages to time travel to meet the Fab Four. Martin is the son of legendary Beatles producer George Martin, and he's lately been returning to the treasure trove of original recording sessions to remix key albums by John, Paul, George and Ringo.

A New Cabaret Series Is Born at The Sharon

Artistic director Whitney Morse is the highlight of "My Knocked Up Life."

Laughter flowed and tears fell during "My Knocked Up Life," the first show in a new cabaret series held in the lobby of The Sharon L. Morse Performing Arts Center on Thursday night.

The Sharon's artistic director, Whitney Morse, was the singer of the night, and at "37 weeks and two days" pregnant, it seemed only appropriate for her to base her show on songs about parenting and pregnancy.

"If you haven't noticed, I'm pretty darn pregnant," Morse joked, after opening the show with Sara Bareilles' "Everything Changes."

But being eight months pregnant didn't stop Morse from singing — and singing really beautifully, at that.

Morse cracked jokes about being pregnant and told stories about her 5-year-old son, Clifford.

"We have some really fun guests tonight," Morse said. "My mother is here. My acid reflux is here as well."

Rockefeller Christmas Tree Cut Down at Upstate N.Y. Home

The Rockefeller Center Christmas tree has been cut down in upstate New York and is being readied for transport to Manhattan, where it will be erected this weekend. Rockefeller Center's publicist says the 72-foot-tall Norway spruce was cut down Thursday morning at the home of Shirley Figueroa and Lissette Gutierrez in Wallkill. That's about 65 miles north of New York City.

around 150 guests chuckled as Morse spoke about the struggles of breastfeeding, putting kids to bed and getting them to school. She performed duets with her mother, Rebecca Morse, and her husband, Jason Goedken. "My mom taught me a lot," Morse said. "She taught me about performing, but she also taught me how to go through tough times." Rebecca sang several songs with Whitney and by herself throughout the night, and it was evident who Whitney inherited her vocal talents from. The show included songs such as "Children Will Listen" and "My New Philosophy." Whitney told the audience that during her first trimester, she performed in the one-woman musical, "Tell Me on a Sunday" at The Studio Theatre Tierra Del Sol and had to have an escape plan in case she had to throw up during the show, which she said never happened but came close.

"But the worst part about being pregnant isn't the sickness or childbirth," Whitney said. "It's the things people think are OK to say to you."

Whitney then gave the audience a list of things that they should not say to a pregnant woman. They were all things that had been said to her.

The list included statements like "So there's definitely only one in there, right?" and "You look like you're about to pop."

It was a heartfelt, intimate and relatable night, backed by a strong band.

"It was very humorous and very sincere," said Lisa Caranante, of the Village of Bonita. "I loved when she was talking about putting kids to sleep. That's exactly what's going on in your head, 'Just go to sleep!' Her family was lovely, and her son was beautiful."

Regain the FREEDOM to Explore!

There's a big, wide world out there, but if sagging lids are keeping you from experiencing it fully, it might be time to consider blepharoplasty, a safe, quick surgery to gently lift sagging eyelids that can block peripheral vision, and make you look more tired than you feel.

Shelby Terpstra, DO is a leading provider of upper and lower corrective and cosmetic eyelid surgery designed to promote better vision and a more refreshed and vital appearance.

BEFORE AFTER

PATIENT STORY:
 "Sagging lids [impacted] my peripheral vision, especially when I was driving. Then a friend recommended Lake Eye. Dr. Terpstra was very informative. After surgery I immediately noticed an amazing improvement. I could see out of the sides of my eyes. A wonderful side-effect is how much better I look. I love it!"
